Neel:

We can accept the subpoena to KVP via email, reserving all of our rights (including to object to the subpoena or the date).

I am checking on the subpoena to Tom Gorman and will respond on that shortly.

Please include all KVP lawyers cc'd on this email in any response.

Rachael

Hi Bob and Rachael,

On Friday, Judge Corley ruled in the District Court Action that by waiving privilege as to work product and certain communications relating to its investigation of Anthony Levandowski and others, Waymo waived privilege as to this entire subject matter. A copy of the order is attached. Based on the testimony of Waymo witnesses, Keker (including Tom Gorman and Rachael) have knowledge and documents relevant to the investigation.

We contacted the special master in the case, and he suggested we secure Keker's agreement to accept service of subpoenas related to the waived subject matter. Attached are subpoenas addressed to Keker and Tom Gorman relating to their involvement in the investigation into the activities of Anthony Levandowski and other former Waymo employees. We are still assessing whether we need to secure Rachael's testimony for the case.

Please let us know if you will accept service of these subpoenas via email or if you would like us to send a vendor to serve these subpoenas. Hong An Vu, cc'd on this email, is coordinating on these issues so please have whomever is handling this issue on your end work with her.

As discovery is set to close soon, time is of the essence. Please raise any issues you have with this subpoena promptly, as we will need to get the Special Master involved.

Thanks,
Neel
